Spring, Space, and the Peace of an Ordered Environment

Spring is here, with its themes of renewal, rebirth and reorganizing, and this is a perfect time to get home and life well organized. One of the best ways to get spring-cleaning into gear is by adding a space organization system to a home. Simply being able to erase all the clutter in a closet, a home office, a pantry or a garage can be a completely fulfilling exercise.

Spring brings a natural longing to get out among the dogwoods and daffodils after the cold winter months. The truth is, the better organized you are, the less time you have to spend organizing and rooting through the clutter to find the things you want and need. The more time you can spend outside.

Closets and More is a Marietta based company that builds custom-designed home organization systems and focuses on just these philosophies: Invest in personal organization now to save time and minimize stress. Streamline your surroundings and get more out of life and your home. Respect your environment, and preserve resources for tomorrow.

By providing stylish storage systems and environmentally friendly personal space solutions that are designed specifically to each customer's needs and tastes, Closets and More helps customers accomplish all of these objectives.

The Truth About Disorder

Everything tends toward chaos, and personal space is no different. This is because people live very full lives: Our children have busy extra-curricular schedules. We have commitments to family, work, clubs, charity and other community activities. That means less time to work on putting things where they should be, and fewer opportunities to figure out how to organize our belongings to suit our lifestyles."
